Treaties under which treaty investor status may be granted.

With regard to your memorandum of December 14, 1953 concerning the above-mentioned subject, I agree that it would be desirable for our treaties of commerce and navigation to be examined with a view to arriving at a decision as to which of those treaties may serve as a basis for the issuing of treaty investor visas.

Pending such a study, however, I believe the Department should be extremely cautious about stating what treaties accord treaty investor status, other than the treaty with Japan.

Although L/T has, of course, no objection to appropriate changes being made in the draft letter to Mr. Koenigsberg attached to L/T memorandum of December 4, 1953 it is suggested, in view of the long delay in answering Mr. Koenigsberg, that the draft letter be utilized unless there is serious objection to it. The last sentence of the draft letter should be modified to read:

"Those treaties received Senate advice and consent to ratification with reservations but, with the exception of the treaty with Israel, have not yet been ratified."

The file on this subject is returned herewith.
